

You are invited to a Nightingale Seminar on:

Wednesday 25 May 2011

Room G79, Franklin-Wilkins Building, King's College London, Waterloo Campus, Stamford Street, London SE1 9NH

17.15 – 17.45: Registration & Refreshments

17.45 – 18.30: Presentation and discussion

Nurse staffing matters: first findings from research addressing the associations between nurse staffing and patient safety and quality of care with guest speakers Professor Anne Marie Rafferty, Head of the Florence Nightingale School of Nursing & Midwifery, King's College London and Professor Peter Griffiths, Chair of Health Services Research, University of Southampton.

RN4cast is the largest ever research study to explore the associations between nurse staffing and patient outcomes. The study aims to get a more accurate idea of the nursing workforce required (in terms of number & qualifications) to ensure safe patient care and a healthy work environment for nurses.

The study is in its 3rd and final year and the England study co-directors (Professor Anne Marie Rafferty and Professor Peter Griffiths) will present findings from the nurse survey that explore the relationship between staffing variables and measures of patient safety and quality of care.

To RSVP and book your place click here